ROUND 17: design names

Day 19: Thursday, August 2

Players Still In Contention: 1/2

What are the rules?

This round is dedicated to the lovely names the designers give the cards. These names are often silly but always give some clue as to what the card does. Each day I will give a card's design name and the card set the card ended up printed in. I am looking for what the card was eventually named.

The daily winner receives a random promotional card. Any player can be a daily winner, regardless of whether they are still in contention for this round's grand prize. Players who are not in contention for this round's grand prize should email trivia@wizards.com to answer today's question.

today's question

Fortress of Solitude (Stronghold)

Due by Thursday, August 2, 4:00 pm PST.

Fortress of Solitude (Stronghold)

Answer: Pursuit of Knowledge. The original flavor is that the wizard locks himself away studying. The Fortress of Solitude is Superman's arctic hideaway.

We're going to bring Question Mark back in two weeks (after the Magic: The Gathering World Championship) with new, simpler rules. See you then!
