We're coming into the final stretch (it turns out a non-creature artifact has a lot fewer decisions than a creature) of "You Make the Card #2". And we finally have a name. No more [Gazarsgo's Plow]. The second card created by the people is going to be called... Crucible of Worlds.

Here's how the voting came out:

Aeonglass	1082	12.57%
Bowerglass	135	1.57%
Burgeoning Glass	194	2.25%
Crucible of Worlds	1798	20.88%
Epoch Timer	574	6.67%
Fallow Filter	444	5.16%
Genesis Timer	1336	15.52%
Geological Clock	503	5.84%
Glass of Seasons	1591	18.48%
Harvest Clock	953	11.07%
TOTAL	8610	100.00%

Now it's time for one final piece - flavor text. We've templated the rules text and we know we have enough space for three lines of flavor text. This will allow all of you burgeoning writers out there a little more space than Forgotten Ancient allowed. Be aware that the maximum length of three lines is 120 characters (and once again, that counts everything - letters, punctuation, even spaces). For more flavor text tips, check out Rei Nakazawa's "Adding a Little Flavor" article.

As with other creative elements, we have to limit each person to a single submission. Note that any flavor text that is over 120 characters will not be considered. Deadline for submissions will be Friday, October 10th. Vote HERE!

Ron Spencer is working on the final art. We'll have one more step to select the flavor text and then Crucible of Worlds will be complete.

Good luck with your writing. We'll see you in a couple weeks.
