Downtime Coverage Continues

Daniel Myers · Inside Magic Online
Tuesday, March 9, 2004

There's really no column this week, folks. If you want to know what's going on inside Magic Online, all you have to do is read the Announcements folder in the message boards.

I thought I might have a few more answers for you in today's column, but it seems I've been putting my foot in it of late. Instead of writing up something I might have to correct several times, contributing to the confusion and frustration we've all experienced today, I'll stick to what I do know.

The Magic Online team will be meeting Tuesday, March 9 at 9:00 AM (0900 hours) Pacific Standard Time to discuss what's going on. This was originally scheduled to decide if we were ready to continue bringing features back to the live Magic Online server. As we don't even have the beta server up at this time, the answer to that question is a resounding "no". So, the topic of conversation will be what the dev team came up with during the night and what we're going to do.

As soon as I can after that meeting, I'll post whatever I have to the Announcements folder. If I have enough for a full article, it'll also show up on the Magic Online page.

I'm sorry I don't have any more information for you at this time and I'm sorry for the continued delay in returning you to the live server. All I can tell you for certain right now is to watch the Announcements folder of the Magic Online message boards for the latest information about what's going on with the game.
